Oneonta Wants Trains Retained

Proposed Action of Ulster & Delaware Railroad in Discontinuing Two Trains Is Protested by Chamber of Commerce Before Public Service Commission—Hearing on Friday.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Nov. 24.—Complaint was made Monday to the Public Service Commission by the Chamber of Commerce of Oneonta against the proposed plan of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company to discontinue the morning train out of Kingston for Oneonta and the afternoon train out of Oneonta for Kingston, and to substitute for each train a slow moving combination milk and passenger train. A hearing will be held at the city hall, Oneonta, Friday, November 27, at 10 a. m.

The complaint alleges that the railroad proposes to discontinue train No. 9, leaving Kingston at 7:20 a. m., and arriving in Oneonta at 11:50 a. m., and substitute therefor a combination train leaving Kingston at 7:30 a. m. and arriving in Oneonta at 2:55 p. m. The petition also alleges that the railroad plans to discontinue train No. 2, leaving Oneonta now at 1:45 p. m. and arriving in Kingston at 6:08 p. m., and substitute a combination train leaving Oneonta at 10:15 a. m., which is not scheduled to arrive in Kingston until 6:15 p. m.

It is alleged also in the petition that these trains, because of the amount of milk and other dairy products that they will pick up at the various stations will not arrive at their destination until a much later hour than scheduled.

The Chamber of Commerce alleges that the existing trains have been maintained for a long period of time and that the present schedule is necessary in order reasonably to accommodate the traffic, passenger and express and mail.

GREEK GOVERNMENT ASKS $700,000 DAMAGES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Athens, Nov. 24.—The Greek government today dispatched a note to Sofia asking $700,000 for damages caused by the Bulgarian violation of her frontier.

This is the latest development in the Greek-Bulgarian situation which threatened for a time to embroil the Balkans in another war until the League of Nations intervened.

The following resolutions were offered and laid over under the rule:

By Supervisor Auchmoody, that $120 be levied on the High Falls North district.

By Supervisor Enderly, that there be levied on the town of Rochester, $2,388.55 to pay certificate of indebtedness for road purposes.

By Supervisor E. Young, that there be levied on the town of Marlborough $1,000 to pay certificate of indebtedness for road purposes; $700 on Milton fire district; $200 for Milton light district; $1,200 on Marlborough light district; $2,432 on Marlborough fire district.

Supervisor Heat-on, that there be levied on the town of Plattekill $1,915 to pay certificate of indebtedness for bridge purposes.

Other Business.

Resolutions pertaining to recommendations of committees to raise moneys as submitted in their reports were offered and went over.

Supervisor Dunbar's motion and report was adopted that 1,200 copies of the proceedings of the board of 1925 be printed.

Debt Situation Will Be Aired

In Congress Together With Expert Probing of International Banking Business—Consider Plans To Curb Dealings of International Bankers.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 24.—While the war debt settlements arranged with Italy, Belgium and other European debtors probably will be ratified with many votes to spare, the approval of Congress is not going to be obtained without a thorough airing of the entire debt situation and some expert probing of the international banking business.

Western members of Congress, now returning to the capital in numbers for the opening session, made this certain today. Some of these congressmen are roundly denouncing the settlements. Their ire is particularly directed toward the big international banking influences that have labored unceasingly toward securing lenient terms for America's debtors.

It now seems likely that some drastic regulatory legislation will be introduced, aimed at curbing the activities of the big banking houses of Wall street in foreign fields.

Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, has been devoting considerable study to this subject recently. Borah openly criticized the Belgian debt settlement as "indecentible" if it was to serve as a precedent for other agreements. The Italian debt was later funded on terms far more lenient than were given even Belgium.

One of the chief criticisms of the settlement plans is that debtor nations come to Washington pleading their poverty and their inability to take up their debts even at the rate the American government is paying on it—4 1/4 per cent—and then as soon as the lower rate of interest is secured they flee away to Wall street and freely negotiate for millions at seven and eight per cent interest.

None of the foreign debt settlements have brought 4 1/4 per cent, the rate the government is paying on the liberty bonds that brought in the money. The British rate was 3 1/4 per cent, the Belgian rate about 1 1/2 per cent and the Italian rate about 3/4 of one per cent. The difference is being paid by American taxpayers—a point that will be heavily stressed in the congressional debate.

Numerous plans are being considered by returning congressmen for curbing the activities of the international bankers.

One of them is to tack an amendment on the revenue act, providing for a flat 50 per cent tax on incomes derived from foreign bonds.

Germans Wrangle Over the Pacts

Nationalists Open Fire on Locarno Security Pacts—Assaults of the Pacts Are Met With Arguments for Ratification.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Nov. 24.—German Nationalists opened fire on the Locarno security pacts in the Reichstag today when they introduced a bill proposing that ratification of the pacts be held in abeyance for a period of two months.

A motion of no confidence in the government for its adoption of these pacts, was also proposed by the Nationalists.

The debate on the pacts was not one-sided, however, and the bitter assaults of the pacts were met with arguments for ratification.

Ex-Chancellor F. L. Ebert, now Centrist deputy, voiced his approval of the pacts. He said, however, that a continuance of Allied occupation of German territory is incompatible with the "spirit of Locarno."

Count Westarp, Nationalist leader, said the German Nationalists "are not so insane as to wish a war with powers armed to the teeth."

"We want an understanding but on the basis of true equality and equality is impossible so long as there is one-sided disarmament," he added.

"The Locarno treaty is a scrap of paper which we will tear up the day the Bolsheviks tore up the Brest-Litovsk treaty," said Deputy Thaelmann. "We will turn this anti-Soviet war into a civil war against the enemies of the proletariat."

The Democratic Deputy Koch praised the approval made by President Koeltzke for a protective policy in Europe, and declared that Europe will collapse and become a second Balkans unless hatred and national antagonisms are set aside.

Thaelmann, who is a communist, said the Locarno pacts are aimed at Russia and warned Germany against joining with Russia's enemies. The movement against Russia is under British control, he declared.

"American credits are tantamount to increasing the economic and political enslavement of Germany," he added.

"Drys" Plan for State Wide Bill

Advocates of State Wide Enforcement Law Believe They Will Be Successful in Getting Measure Through Both Houses of Legislature.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 24.—Another "wet" and "dry" fight looms on the 1926 legislative horizon.

Dry forces throughout the state are perfecting plans to make another effort to have a state wide prohibition bill passed by the Legislature next winter, according to reports reaching the Capitol today.

The so-called wets are not worrying. They admit the chances are that a dry measure will be passed in the Assembly but they appear confident it will be defeated by a fusion of Democrats and Republicans in the Senate. That is exactly what happened last year.

Advocates of a state wide enforcement law, which would take the place of the old Mullan-Gage law repealed by Governor Smith, believe they will be successful in their efforts next year to get a measure through both houses of the Legislature. While the Senate will be composed of the same members as last year, with the exception of James J. Walker, who has been elected mayor of New York, the "drys" appear to think they will be able to convince two or three of the Republicans who voted "wet" last year to vote "dry" at the coming session.

Had it not been for Republican votes, the dry bill would have been passed last year and put squarely up to Governor Smith again.

It was declared today at the Capitol that politics might enter more into the wet and dry fight next year than it did at the last session. It was pointed out that the Republican leaders might feel it would be a good political move, in view of the gubernatorial campaign next fall, to pass a dry bill at the coming session. The Republicans are certain that Governor Smith would veto such a bill if one ever reached the executive desk, but they are wondering if it wouldn't be a wise political move on their part to get the governor on record again on this question, particularly should he be a candidate to succeed himself next fall.

The dry bill could be passed in the Assembly by a majority of between 10 and 12 according to the prohibition advocates. They are not worrying about the lower house.

Legion Post to Dine Harding

Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion, is planning an informal reception and dinner in honor of Lieutenant "Jack" Harding tomorrow evening preceding his lecture in the Kingston High School under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs. Lieutenant Harding participated in the historic making round-the-world flight in 1924. The reception and dinner are open to all members of the post, but in order that proper preparations can be made it is necessary that all members who desire to attend make reservations this evening with George W. Potter, commander, or Andrew J. Murphy, Jr., who are making the arrangements.

Shop and Ship Early for Xmas

"Early shopping and early shipping" of Christmas packages go hand in hand, according to L. G. Kimball, agent of the American Railway Express Company. Steps have been taken to expedite the movement of all Christmas gift shipments and the cooperation of the public is sought to relieve the strain of the rush usually encountered during the last few days before Christmas.

Most of the troubles which delay Christmas shipments are due to inadequate packing or errors in addresses, according to Mr. Kimball.

If the contents of a package are fragile, a caution on the wrapping to that effect will inform those through whose hands it passes, that it requires extra careful handling.

"We have found, by past experience, that when the address is legibly written and complete in all details, the package is quickly handled directly to the person to whom it is addressed and seldom goes astray."

Such has been the growth of almost every city that it is essential to give the street and number of the addresses. Abbreviations in writing the name of the state sometimes result in mis-routing because it cannot be told which state is intended.

"As a matter of precaution the sender should not fail to put his or her name and address on the package and it is not a bad plan to put the same information inside. Thus, if the outside 'marks' become defaced, the identity of the owner or that of the person to whom it is sent, is not lost."

As a means of encouraging better addressing, special labels have been issued to give Christmas express packages the right of way during the holidays.

No Delivery of Mail on Thursday

Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, the local post office will observe the usual holiday regulations. There will be no delivery of mail that day. Up to Judges to Decide Best Play

They Witnessed Same Play at Fifteen Farm and Home Bureau Community Meetings and Winners Will Present It at Annual Banquet December 2.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

After four weeks of almost continuous attendance at the Farm and Home Bureau social community meetings, the judges who have been tasked with the job of selecting "the best play" have finally settled to best—settled down among the memories of fifteen very excellent rehearsals of the common play presented at each of fifteen social meetings by local players in the community—settled down to the hardest task they have had in some time, the selection of the "winner" play.

Not the least of the judges' troubles have appeared during the final week of the meetings as five rather exceptionally clever productions were given during this period. On Monday evening the Home Bureau community at Wawarsing gave a very good account of themselves. Their performers showed ability and coaching. At Kerhonkson on Tuesday evening the two hundred and fifty who attended felt certain that Kerhonkson gets the cup, and an innocent bystander would probably see no reason why they should not get the cup. The cast performed like stage veterans, showed excellent coaching and careful selection. It will be hard to beat Kerhonkson. What they will say about Allgerville-Kysler is uncertain. It will be hard to beat this outfit. More trouble for the judges.

A brief rest to catch their breath was very welcome to the judges Thursday evening. But more and more trouble appeared on Friday and Saturday when Modena-Plattekill and Tongere came through with their bids for honors. And consideration will be due them in the final analysis.

Who are the judges? When will they decide? See the winners in action at the annual banquet on December 2, and judge for yourself. But be lenient, be considerate, look for the good points, enjoy it. Everybody, including the judges, have aimed to please. Fifteen of the best social gatherings ever held by any Farm or Home Bureau have resulted from the cooperation of all the members and their friends. Over two thousand people have enjoyed the rehearsals and the general good times that the meetings have produced. You cannot help but enjoy the final production at the banquet. It was "All for fun and fun for all," and leaves a warm spot in many hearts for the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau.

ATTACKS THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 24.—The motion picture industry was severely attacked today by H. W. Fuller, counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, in his statement on the enforcement of the anti-trust laws against the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and all other picture interests.

The fourth largest business in the country, the motion picture industry, wields a tremendous power for good or evil, and in many instances is using this influence in a detrimental way upon the nation, Fuller charged.

"Law enforcement as depicted upon the screen has been made a farce," he said.

Resume Coal Strike Parley

Conference Between Markle and Lewis Indicates Resumption of Negotiations Toward Settlement of Anthracite Coal Strike.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 24.—Negotiations toward a settlement of the anthracite coal strike will soon be resumed by the operators and miners. This was the opinion today in authoritative quarters following a three-hour conference here last night between J. Alvin Markle, chairman of the joint committee and the anthracite operators' negotiating committee, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Neither Markle or Lewis would discuss the conference. It was regarded as significant, among coal men, that Markle did not deny that the conference was held to hasten an adjustment of the strike.

Those who are in touch with the situation said the conference was an indication of an early resumption of discussion of the strike. No advance information "leaked out." Markle arrived here late yesterday and went immediately to the Union League Club where he was joined by Lewis. The latter did not leave the Union League until nearly 10 o'clock last night.

Markle presided at the Atlantic City conference from July 9 to August 4, last, which ended in a deadlock.

It was understood when the Atlantic City meeting adjourned that either side desired to re-open the wage and contract discussion Markle as chairman, would call a conference.

Markle, while the owner of several coal mines, is not affiliated with the operators and sits on the joint committee as an impartial and disinterested member.

Weinstein Case In County Court

Statement Taken by Police on Night of His Arrest Raises Objection by His Attorney—"Huckle" Dempsey, Wanted as Witness, Is Missing.

The Weinstein abduction case was continued before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler and a jury today. Several witnesses were sworn Monday afternoon by the prosecution and testified to acts in connection with the case. Among them were the officers who were told the story of the attack by the girl and who later summoned Weinstein from a cafe and after taking him to the Margolis home, took him to the city hall where he was placed under arrest. During the time Weinstein was at police headquarters he was questioned in regard to the matter, and early in the morning made a statement which was written out by Officer Keardon who was acting sergeant at the time.

Can't Locate Dempsey.
An effort by The People to introduce this statement in evidence at the morning session of the court, caused defendant's attorneys to raise an objection which led to the examination of the police officers in regard to one Dempsey who was present at the city hall on the night of April 11 and who appeared before the grand jury which found the indictment but who cannot be located at present.

Dempsey is wanted as a witness but efforts to locate him have failed. The police have attempted to get information and Sheriff Wells and his deputies have attempted to locate him. He was at headquarters on the night Weinstein and Margolis were arrested and is connected with the statements made there at that time. What the connection is was not revealed but it is in regard to the statement which Weinstein made and which The People attempted to introduce in evidence.

A recess was taken shortly before noon when Officer Burger was summoned. He drove the police car on the night of April 11, when the act is alleged to have been committed, and was at the hall.

Margolis Also Made Statement.
Beside the statement made by Weinstein there were statements made by Margolis and Miss Corwin the same evening. All three statements were taken down by Officer Keardon and witnessed by himself and Officer Fatum and each signed by the deponent after being read over to them.

In making a motion to have the case put over until the January term of court, counsel for defendant stated that one ground was the absence of the witness Dempsey, who has been referred to as "Huckle" Dempsey. Defendant claims that he is a material and necessary witness. The case was continued this afternoon.

Will Lay Knowles Case Before Grand Jury.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 24.—Steps were being taken today to lay the matter of the mysterious disappearance of E. M. Knowles, Jeweler, before the grand jury. Knowles disappeared October 12 and a six weeks search by the police has failed to find any trace of him. Items valued at between $50,000 and $100,000 are missing. Most of the jewelry were the property of wholesale jewelers from whom Knowles had obtained them on consignment.

New York, Nov. 24.—A highwayman with the strength of a gorilla was being hunted today as the slayer of Walter Casper, 50, found with his head smashed in at his garage near Ocean 51st St., N. Y. The latter apparently was frightened away as money was found in the dead man's pockets.

"Dry" Violator Sentenced.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Greenwich, Conn., Nov. 24.—Charged with transporting 1,170 gallons of beer in a car for which he had no license to drive, Harold Townsend, 36, of White's street, New Haven, today was fined $250 and costs and sent to jail for sixty days. He was arrested early today by state troopers.

Gerald Chapman Escapes Noose For a Time

By Means of Writ of Habeas Corpus, Directing That Notorious Bandit Be Produced Before Board of Pardons—May Be "Offered" Presidential Pardon.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24.—Gerald Chapman, "super bandit," and alleged murderer, has again escaped the noose for a time at least.

He will not die on the gallows at the state prison at Wethersfield, on December 3 for the murder of James Skelly a New Britain, Conn., policeman, a year ago.

The notorious bandit has gained more time by means of a writ of habeas corpus presented by Chapman's counsel and signed by United States District Judge Edwin S. Thomas.

The writ says in effect, that Gerald Chapman is a federal prisoner. Consequently, Chapman's counsel contends, he cannot be executed until he has served his 25 year sentence in Atlanta for mail robbery.

The writ directs that Chapman be produced before Judge Thomas next Monday in the board of pardons room in the state prison.

Chapman's counsel informed the federal judge that Governor Trumbull of Connecticut had agreed that as soon as he was informed of the issuance of the writ he would sign a reprieve for the convicted murderer.

Should Judge Thomas deny the writ of habeas corpus next Monday, it is understood, Chapman's attorneys will take the case to the United States Circuit court of appeals in New York city. Should the decision go against Chapman there, the case, it was said, would then be appealed to the United States supreme court.

Alcorn at Washington.
Washington, Nov. 24.—Hugh Alcorn, state's attorney for Connecticut, left the Capitol today after another series of conferences with government officials here over the status of Gerald Chapman, the "super bandit," whom Connecticut authorities want to hang.

Alcorn declined to discuss the results of his mission here. The state cannot hang Chapman legally because he is an escaped federal prisoner and has many years left of a 25 year sentence.

One of Alcorn's conferences today was with James A. Finch, pardon attorney in the department of justice following which it was reported that Chapman would be "offered" a presidential pardon. Should Chapman accept such a pardon it would wipe out the remainder of his federal sentence and make him a candidate for the state's noose.

Legal experts, however, assert that a prisoner cannot be compelled to accept a pardon.

The home of Deputy Chief Police Inspector George C. Libere, was reported greatly damaged.

CHILDREN'S FEAR OF HIM DRIVES ENGINEER TO HIDE

Man Missing Since Last July Is Found Near Death in Woods.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—That the happiness of children should be turned into fright at his appearance seemed to be the thought uppermost in the mind of Paul Bloose, forty-year-old civil engineer, mysteriously missing since last July, and found in a cave near Pittsburgh recently, when he regained consciousness in a hospital hours after having been admitted. His first words were of the children, then he told hospital attendants that he had wandered into the cave a week ago and had existed on a diet of berries and herbs, but did not throw any light on where he had been prior to entering the cave.

When discovered by a man in search of mushrooms, who was attracted to the cave by moans, Bloose, unable to talk, was in a very weakened condition and unable to stand. He was huddled in a corner of the cave and his body was almost devoid of clothing, an old sack being his only covering. His hair was long and his beard shaggy and matted. The cave is situated in a densely wooded section.

Last Seen in July.

According to relatives, who are unable to aid authorities in a solution of the mystery, Bloose was last seen on the morning of last July 29, when he left the home of his brother-in-law at Del Monte, Westmoreland county, not far from this city, presumably for work. He did not arrive at his office and an extended search failed to reveal any trace of his whereabouts, and now those interested in the case appear at a loss to know where he has been.

Authorities of Allegheny and Westmoreland counties, as well as the police of Pittsburgh, are conducting an investigation.

At the hospital it was said that Bloose's condition is critical, due to hunger and exposure.

Diver's Battle With Lobster Told by Radio

Heligoland, Germany.—A battle with a giant sea lobster was one of the thrilling experiences of Herr Harmsdorff, the diver who recently accomplished the wireless broadcasting from the bottom of the ocean. Listeners in Hamburg, 100 miles away, Greme, Hanover and even in Berlin listened to his account of this battle even while it was in progress, 90 feet below the surface of the North sea.

Harmsdorff went down from his diving barge with a microphone installed in the helmet of his diver's costume, and standing on the ocean bed he reported to listeners he was able to see with the aid of a 2,000 candle power specially constructed deep sea lamp.

The diver related how a big lobster swam toward him and when he attempted to grab it the giant crustacean gave him battle with its great scissor-like claws, which seized Harmsdorff so firmly that he felt an excruciating pain in spite of his thick rubber gloves.

The diver also described an eel which he watched swallowing smaller fish. He saw swarms of fish, frightened, darting to and fro and looking like flocks of swallows. The bottom of the boat from which he had descended looked like a giant whale, he said. He described the bottom of the sea as like a fairy garden.

Dog Too Faithful

Strasbourg, France.—The extreme faithfulness of his dog resulted in the death of Bernard Joerg, a schoolmaster. While crossing the railroad tracks Joerg was struck by a locomotive and thrown against a fence. His legs were crushed.

Aid was forthcoming immediately, but the injured man's dog stood guard over him and refused to let the doctor approach. When the dog was lured away by strategy it was too late.

Beats Wife for Week, Gives Her to Boarder

Mansfield, England.—Tired of his wife's cooking and dissatisfied with her conduct generally, Walter Knowles, a clerk of Kirby, beat her every night for a week and then gave her to their boarder as a present. He admitted as much to the judge when called into court on a charge of nonsupport preferred by Mrs. Knowles.

The wife presented in evidence a note written by her husband reading: "This certifies that I, Walter Knowles, have turned my wife over to Andy Bayless, lodger." She was granted a maintenance order of 25 shillings weekly.

HAS TWO WIVES IN SAME FLAT

Husband Favors Spouses on Alternate Days.

New York.—Two wives cooked and baked for Samuel Grossman under the same roof.

On alternate nights the fragrance of piping-hot dishes in the kitchen of one found its way to the other, where dinner had been waiting for many minutes, while neither of the women knew her husband, to whom she was legally married, was with the other.

Such is apartment-house life in New York.

In Tombs court both wives told Magistrate Simpson how they had learned of the deception but recently. One night Samuel would take wife No. 1 to the movies, the next night wife No. 2 tripped gaily down the same stairs on his arm, bound for the same show.

The women never met. The name of a third woman also figures in the case. She was known as a "countess" at Grossman's summer home at Keanburg, N. J., one of the wives said, and furnished bail for the alleged bigamist when he was arrested.

It was said that Grossman was called her "cave man" and that his dishabille capering attracted attention in the Jersey town.

The man's first marriage was to Mrs. Jeannette Grossman in 1911, while he took Mrs. Lillian Grossman as his wife in 1915.

Grossman was held for the grand jury.

Girl, 16, With Bedsheets, Rescues Six From Fire

Suffield, Conn.—Mary Smith, sixteen years old, was left in charge of her six younger brothers and sisters one night, and when she awoke early in the morning and found that their home was on fire she set about saving them. She soon found that they could not get down the stairs, so she awakened her family and sent them into her room.

There she took the sheets from the beds, knifed them together and made a rope. She lowered one end from the second-story window and tied the other to a bedpost. Then she sent each child in turn, the youngest first, out of the window and down the rope to safety. And when they had all reached the ground she herself slid out of the window and down the rope. The house was on fire all over by this time, and the fire department could not save it.

Lull Guard With Banjos as Four Break Jail

Snowhill, Md.—Four men, while one of them was playing industriously on a banjo, lulling the sheriff to deeper sleep, escaped from the Worcester county jail here. One of them was recaptured later at Crisfield. The other three are still at large.

James Baker, one of them, was held on a murder charge, accused of having killed James Carr at Whaleyville, last July. Benny Patsella, another of the escaped prisoners, was held on a charge of auto theft. The other two were negroes.

Patsella is the man who was arrested at Crisfield. His right foot had been broken and he was taken to Crisfield hospital for treatment. Nedra Scott, one of the colored prisoners who escaped, was reported to have been seen in Crisfield.

Explanation Enough

Bluebell is a lovely girl. People like her. She has a way with her, a way that invites confidence. But sometimes one of her confiding friends has to take her to task mildly.

"Bluebell," said one of these, "I don't know who gave that secret away. When I told it to you the other evening I made it between you, me and the gate post."

"Well, you remember it was a stranger gate post," responded Bluebell gravely.

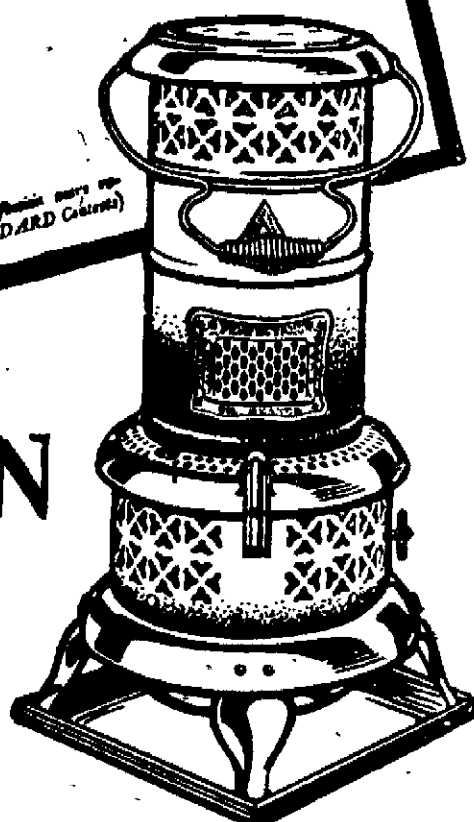

"-AS COZY AS ONE CAN WISH"

Dear Sir:

With a Perfection Oil Heater in the house as a supplement, any corner may be made as comfortable and cozy as one can wish in a surprisingly short time. It serves so many purposes. It makes a cozy corner for the invalid; heats an extra kettle of water for any purpose whatsoever; pops the corn for the party of five and the discomfort of the extra heat in the house; sitting close by the dining table, it serves for the quick, hot toast, and you don't wait long either; it keeps the vegetables from freezing when the thermometer races many degrees below zero, and not the least of all, it keeps baby chicks as cozy as can be, when old mother hen has become a back number.

Very truly yours,

Vital Changes in Season's Fashions

Innovations Which Cannot Be Disregarded Cited by Correspondent.

Timid negativism is the complex which seasonably distinguishes the chic from the not so chic. Semiannual it attacks each phase of the mode—couturier and critics and milady herself—and it is the saddest and most reactionary force in fashion. It is the quality which resists progress and attempts to translate radical changes into merely variations of old themes. When you read that the flare is merely a variation of the straight line, that the new elaboration is merely complicated simplicity, you are reading the timorous words of the pussyfooters whose negativistic comments turn daytime into darkness, asserts a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

There are seasons, of course, when the reactionaries ride high in their saddles, when the mode remains motionless and static, when the silhouette changes not a bit and the waistline rests snugly satisfied with its former habitat or status. You may remember the monotonous iteration of youth, straight line and simplicity in the days when the quiescent meadows of the mode remained in a state of beatific somnolence. Those were the nurturing days of negativism, and they generated a reactionary attitude among the millions of fashion which still persists in many quarters no matter how strong the evidence of progress.

As a matter of fact the mode has completed and is now in process of consummating four vital changes and no woman who aspires to march with fashion's advance guard can afford to disregard any of them. First, the static line has been replaced by the flare—and do you remember the cautions of the standpatters last fall when the hemline flare was first introduced? That was a splendid example of the impending timidity to which we are referring.

Secondly, puerilism, misnamed youth eternal, has been banned from the ranks of the mature where it achieved some grotesque results during the several seasons of its dominance.

Simplicity Passes.

Thirdly, elaboration is now combating simplicity, which has been carried too far and continued too long, and while no modern maiden will ever swish through the avenues accompanied by anything like the encumbrances of her Victorian forbears, there is, nevertheless, a distinct trend among the creative spirits of fashion toward greater decoration, particularly in the evening.

Fourthly, a counter move against the overextension of the sports vogue has just been inaugurated, and while you may hear from many sources that the sports mode is the essence of modern fashions, the handwriting on the wall is faint but unmistakably in contradiction. The sensitive leaders of the mode are headed in the direction of greater formality and the smart modern demimonde will not continue to intrude the sports spirit into formal affairs.

Keep in mind this background when you select your new wardrobe. It is certain you will see many models which incorporate the passing spirit as well as that which is about to come, and the selection, and your consequent degree of smartness, depend entirely upon your choice. Remember that the day of radical fashion changes is over—that the mode moves now in a subtle and more indolent manner and that it requires far more concentration to follow and interpret its smartest moods. Wherever each new season sponsored a kerchief that was easily apparent to all, the lower development of today's mode and the tremendous resistance to every new idea makes modern fashions extremely simple to follow.

but inordinately difficult to lead. Among some of the interesting costumes which have already been accepted in Paris is a model contributed by Captain Molyneux, from which you may understand the tendency away from simplicity—consider the details and it will be quite obvious. Here is a dress of brick-red velvet with a collar and cuffs of metallic lace and sleeves which puff from the elbow. Around the nether portion of the flared skirt—which incidentally portrays the swinging silhouette—there are luxurious and ample bands of sable. And the lady carries a muff, a singularly feminine performance.

A Renee Ensemble. A typical Renee ensemble is not overelaborate and yet it has none of that affected simplicity which characterized the era of the chemise frock. The flare is present but dormant and only becomes assertive when the wearer walks. The dress portion is developed in chestnut brown satin with cloth bands of the same color interspersed. Numerous buttons on sleeves and the front portion of the dress are covered with self-colored satin.

The coat portion of this ensemble is a decidedly more elaborate affair and it expresses the new themes of fashion in a bolder manner. Its flare is haunting and its elaboration is smart and uncompromising. Compared with the mannish coats, one will immediately sense its chic distinction. Developed in brown mixed kasba, it has a luxurious beaver collar, beaver cuffs and sleeve-trimming as well as a circular beaver border.

A Chantal model emphasizes the distinctive qualities of the new season. Developed in mustard yellow crepe de chine of the heaviest quality, it is a splendid transition model for the girl who is still faithful to the sports tradition. The skirt flares moderately at the bottom, the waistline is marked and the sleeves puff from the elbow to right before the wrist. The embroidery which appears at the bateau neckline and reappears on shoulders, sleeves, waistline, bodice closing, and around the skirt consists of interlocking rings of the same color as the frock. A dress of this type should be worn over a white slip.

Built-in Elaboration.

The definite formality of the mode du soir is expressed in a Poiret dinner gown. There is an instance of built-in elaboration as distinguished from the elaboration which is imposed by means of trimming and various other appendages. Built-in elaboration is obviously a step in advance of the imposed sort, and it evidences the fact that the evening mode has almost recovered its ancient ornateness. No doubt the Paris Exposition des Arts Decoratifs had a great influence on the new mode, and you will see many instances of its effect in autumn fashions. A Poiret model is developed in black velvet and has an "ancient regime" bustle back formed by huge draperies of velvet which are held in place by diamante crescents. Diamante and pearl bands round the solitary trimming note.

Have in mind the fledgling themes of fall when you proceed to acquire your costumes and do not be misled by any timorous comments to the effect that the new styles are no different from the old. They are fuller, more feminine and always more ornate, and the chic demimonde is the lady who will not make concessions on any of these new issues. For smartness is never achieved through compromise.

As usual, Worth's coats and wraps are particularly interesting. He shows them long, three-quarter and semi-three-quarter length and either straight or circular. Some of those which show the newest cut have a model skirt under the arm that adds in a circular movement as it moves the hem, giving a graceful fullness to the skirt. Satin, cloth, kasba, velvet, mink and suede are used for these coats and most of them are trimmed with fur. The ensemble plays an important part in this as in other collections, but the separate wraps are quite as beautiful and practical.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 24, 1925.

NEW YORK'S 740 THEATRES.

New York city, according to figures of the commissioner of licenses, has 740 theatres with an aggregate seating capacity of 744,311 persons, and as many of these houses give more than one performance daily, it is estimated that more than a million persons go to the theatre every day in the American metropolis alone. And what do they get out of it beyond more or less pleasurable time-killing? How much of it is rapid farce full of stale and rude jokes, cheap musical comedy of an unreality and sameness to bore one to desperation, "sex" plays of destructive moral tone, productions of hard-boiled playwrights to whom nothing is sacred, sensational photodramas designedly untrue to life? It is safe to say that the great majority are the despair of the educated as well as of the highbrow critics. In its comment a leading New York daily is quite frank, refraining from the usual accusation of the multitude of visitors from all parts of the United States who contribute so heavily to the daily million in the play-houses of New York. "We spend much time and more breath," it says, "expounding the serious aspirations of the human race, but when the statistics come in we find that the human race spends a large part of its time in seeking to forget that it is human. If to our million theatre-goers are added the number of New Yorkers who daily ride around in automobiles, who dance away the evening in cabarets, who shoot pool and bowl at temples, who hold nightly discourse at the bootlegger's parlor, how many out of the seven million will be found meditating on the serious purpose of life? Some live to eat and some eat to live, but most apparently eat and live in order that we may play."

A COFFIN OF SOLID GOLD.

The extraordinary interest in Tutankhamen's tomb waned long before the full story was told, yet the culmination is worthy of note for more reasons than the discovery of still greater wealth than that which first arrested a wealth-loving world's attention. It was long supposed that "old King Tut" (he was in fact quite young), rested in a gilded coffin, but when it was at last lifted out of its nest of shrines it was found to be of "solid gold" and "probably the most massive relic of ancient civilization in that metal." Moreover, there was found within it objects of adornment of the most costly nature. All of which helps to explain why the casket of a monarch so enormously valuable in itself was hidden deep in sealed shrines, safe from pillage as well as from desecration.

Egypt may not have been the "Ophir" of the Old Testament writers which so abounded in "gold"—the identity of which is uncertain—but that it was once a land of great riches there have been many indications, the last and not the least of which is this magnificent and newly discovered relic of a buried civilization. The royal family to which young King Tut belonged looked upon a fair land of plenty and amassed vast riches. No more striking illustration of the sickness of fortune and the revolutions of time can be found than the difference between ancient and modern Egypt. There are no stores of gold in Egypt now and its people must fight for a living against the encroaching desert sands which threaten even the narrow strip watered by the Nile. Today's abject squalor of fellahs but is but mocked by the reminders of the richer and pomp of the far past.

The father of Nathalia Crane, Brooklyn's 12-year-old girl poet, being accused of appropriating to his own use "thousands of dollars" in royalties paid the child by her publishers, has produced documentary proof that, in spite of all the advertisements, he received only $452.40 in royalties for the year 1924. Most poets of mature years would be glad to be assured of that much, for poetry is not widely read and, except in rare instances, does not "pay" in money terms.

According to Judge John F. McTigue of New York, writing in The Herald, information is wanted on "robbers, burglars and such vermin," and "the best way to deal with a hardened criminal is to treat him rough"—through the prompt imposition of the heaviest penalties. And it does look as if we shall have to come to it, notwithstanding the specious reasoning of criminal lawyers and the opinions of soft-hearted sentimentalists.

With 250 Chicago policemen reported to be on the payroll of one gang of bootleggers, no wonder the latter put a high price on the stuff they sell.

That Body of Yours

RIG DOSES.

One of our prominent medical journals uses an expression that is most appropriate for men and women, who in an endeavor to make up for their regular lack of exercise, engage in "spasmodic, unregulated exertion."

And yet this is about the way many folks are going through life at this time. Everything must be done at top speed. If in the office, factory or anywhere else, speed is the main essential. Eating is done in the same manner and sleep is taken at irregular hours.

It is only natural therefore that when it comes to taking some exercise the same hurried method is used. Unfortunately added to this hurried method of exercise is the irregularity of it. Some men expect to get out Saturday afternoon and perhaps Sunday, and see how many games of golf or tennis they can play at one time. One of these men boasted recently that he had played fifty-four holes of golf, three complete games, during the afternoon and early evening without a single stop. Perhaps he would not be on the links again for a couple of weeks.

Now what is wrong with this "spasmodic, unregulated exertion?" The important point is not the matter of the muscles covering the body, that they get stiff and sore when exercise is taken irregularly, or is overdone. This is bad enough, because the soreness and stiffness are uncomfortable, and take a little time to work out, but the big point is the effect upon the most important muscle in the body, that is the heart itself.

Nothing can strengthen a heart except exercise. Lack of exercise for any length of time is going to impair the heart muscle, just as it will any other muscle. But on the other hand these spasmodic irregular exertions of doing a great amount of exercise just occasionally, simply means strain not development.

Now the sensible thing is the regular daily exercise. Games outdoors are ideal of course, but where this is not possible a brisk walk and a few minutes bending exercises should certainly be taken. You want to avoid the extremes—lack of exercise, and overdoing it at irregular intervals.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

ENTER ISAAC SEARS.

Not the least of the problems that confronted the rapidly forming patriot organization 150 years ago was that of settling up a safe and sure system of communication between the Continental Congress, the provincial congresses and their various committees, and the army headquarters in Cambridge. How the colonies were beginning to work together for this and other common purposes is revealed in the following record of a vote passed by the Continental Council of Safety late in November, 1775, at Governor Jonathan Trumbull's "war office" at Lebanon:

"The congress of New York being moved and directed by the general congress to provide and establish proper expeditious ways of conveying intelligence, in case of any alarms or invasion, &c., by beacons or posts, &c., and they moving us to come into similar methods with them &c.,

"Voted, That his Honor, the Governor, be desired to write to and employ sundry persons in the western towns of this colony, to engage and provide proper persons to be in readiness at a minute's warning, to carry any intelligence of alarm or invasion to every proper town and place as occasion may require; and that he be also desired to advise the Hon'ble Congress of New York of this provision."

An early beneficiary of this system of "beacon of posts" was one Isaac Sears, member of a band of young patriots who had taken upon themselves unofficially the task of furthering the cause of liberty in whatever ways seemed best to them. Because of his activities Sears had been marked by the Tories for kidnapping. He was to be taken aboard the British ship "Asia" and landed in some foreign clime where his longing for freedom could be abundantly satisfied. Sears and his friends heard of this project through one of the post riders or "expresses" of the newly organized intelligence service. They approved of the kidnapping idea readily enough, but preferred to be the kidnappers rather than the kidnapped. For the latter role they selected the persons who had planned to shanghai Sears. To them in those days of direct action it mattered not at all that these persons were men of vast importance in their vicinities, and so with the intrepidity of youth Sears and his compatriots in one day hauled into captivity the Rev. Samuel Seabury, an Episcopalian bishop; Nathaniel Underhill, Esq., mayor of the Borough of Westchester; and the Honorable Jonathan Fowler, of East Chester, a judge of the Superior Court of Common Pleas. At least two of these worthies deemed it wise under the circumstances to retract promptly their previous stand against the Continental Congress and promised not to "transgress in the view of the people of the continent, nor to oppose in any sense measures taken by the Continental Congress."

With this little task out of the way, Sears and his men were then ready to pass on to New York city for their next service to their cause which will be reported in tomorrow's story in this series.

DEER HUNTS HUNTERS.

Feed Him, Dress Him, Wound, And Find Him Home.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Nov. 24.—A hunting accident that promises long life to the victim and freedom from the hazards of the hunting field occurred in the Adirondacks near the close of the recent hunting season.

P. F. Coleman of Syracuse and Clarence White of Havana while hunting deer on Jones Mountain at the headwaters of Nelson lake near McKeever came upon a deer whose actions puzzled them. When the deer was first sighted, it ran about forty yards, stopped and appeared in distress. As they watched, it bent down on its knees, and finally sank to the ground. Running up to investigate they found that the animal had been shot in one eye and was exhausted from loss of blood and lack of food. How long it had been wandering since it was shot they had no means of knowing.

The hunting party immediately resolved itself into a relief expedition. The deer was hoisted to Mr. White's shoulders and toted two miles to camp where it was given the best room in the shack, was fed on milk and its wound dressed as well as possible. The first aid treatment was a successful that in the middle of the night the deer got up and hunched about the camp till he found his rescuers and proceeded to lick their hands and faces. Whether this damp earnest meant gratitude or that their charge wanted another meal was not clear but he got all the milk there was and was put to bed again in a part of the camp that would prevent further interruption of his bottle's slumbers.

The next day the hunters put their camp in order and then about 10 o'clock the deer and found food for it. The nearest milk supply was several miles from camp, either McKeever or Thompson, and when they "tramped" through their chains they kept an eye out for a time, but failed to find them of their new duties.

Finally it was decided that one of them should stay at camp and nurse the deer while the other went to the Continental Congress in Albany to learn what disposition could be made of Mr. White's deer. Mr. White and Mr. Thompson went to Albany and returned to find the deer dead and the milk supply exhausted. The deer was found in a state of starvation and it was found that it had reached its new home in safety.

58 MILES PER HOUR
25 MILES to the GALLON
5 to 25 MILES in 8 SECONDS

Only Chrysler Four Combines These Performance Abilities

The Chrysler Four's extraordinary performance—its direct and positive evidence of the highest quality in design, materials and craftsmanship—literally leaves no alternative in its field.

Today's market holds nothing of any type, approaching the Chrysler Four price range, which even remotely approximates its supreme combination of performance abilities.

In speed, the Chrysler Four gives you a new standard—58 miles an hour, achieved quickly and easily, not for a momentary spurt, but for eager mile after mile, as long as you like.

When you would dash away ahead of the crowd in traffic, the Chrysler Four whisks you from 5 to 25 miles in eight seconds—with sure-footed reliability and purring smoothness.

Yet, with all the super-power necessary for such speed and such swift pick-up, you can get 25 miles to the gallon.

Any one of these exceptional abilities would be sufficient evidence of value for any manufacturer except Chrysler: the three of them clinch the assurance of Chrysler Four's transcendent quality and worth.

We are eager to afford you the opportunity of proving the superiority of this favored Four. We ask you to ride in the car—drive it—see and feel for yourself, its speed, its swift response, its pliability of power, its smooth operation, and even more particularly, its riding steadiness and comfort. Then, we believe, you will inevitably share in the enthusiasm of its tens of thousands of owners.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Lanham and Joe Burnett, of the state highway commission, were this morning waiting to see what action Governor Miriam A. Ferguson would take on the ultimatum signed yesterday by 52 members of the house in which it is demanded that she call a special session to investigate highway matters.

It was stated among legislators early today that Mrs. Ferguson would probably be given until December 15 to call the special session. Neither Mrs. Ferguson nor her husband, James A. Ferguson, who was impeached eight years ago in connection with the highway and other matters, would make a statement this morning.

Buck Carries Barrel

Tangled in Antlers
Plainfield, Conn.—A wild buck with a flour barrel fastened to its antlers held full away on Canterbury road one night recently.

The animal evidently had been eating from the barrel, was suddenly frightened and not being able to shake off the barrel, went through the rural districts with a wild rush that drove all traffic from the road for a time.

The last seen of the animal it had jumped into the Quinebaug river, still wearing its wooden bonnet.

Dead at Throttle

Syracuse, N. Y.—With a dead man's hand gripping the throttle, the Western express, bound for Chicago, sped westward for nearly fifteen miles.

Charles J. Foreman, fireman, of Albany, discovered his engineer, William Vanbergen, also of Albany, dead in the cab of the engine with his head crushed, as the flyer came through Minerva yards, just east of Syracuse. Vanbergen is believed to have been struck by a girder of the Canastota bridge.

Trappers Waste Much

Twenty per cent of the annual catch of fur-bearing animals is lost yearly on account of trapping too early or too late or failure to take care of skins properly.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GETTING ACQUAINTED

"We're all small animals in this house," said the Wombat from Australia, a funny little animal who enjoyed lying on his back, even when he talked.

"We are," said the white-nosed Coati.

"That's all I want to know," said the Wombat. "Or, at least I want to know is that some one agrees with me and has the intelligence to see that I am right."

"So now, dear animals, I will go to sleep if you will excuse me."

And the Wombat, the funny little Wombat, still lying on his back, went sound, sound asleep.

He did not pay attention to anything for a long time. Sleep was so pleasant.

"The zoo is nice," said the white-nosed Coati.

He hoped some other animal would feel like a little chat, now that Wombat had gone to sleep.

And, sure enough, one of the squirrels blinked his eyes and looking at the Coati, said:

"If you were a little fatter you'd look like a fox."

"That's what so many say," the white-nosed Coati answered.

"Another squirrel has awakened and is ready for a talk," he added after a moment.

"Yes," said the second squirrel, "I am ready for a chat."

"Good," the others said.

And then added:

"What are you going to say for yourself?"

"Well," the second squirrel replied, "I am certainly not going to say my say for some one else. I am the one who is going to chat and so I don't chat for another creature."

"I chat for myself."

"Oh, that's just a saying," one of the others said. "When some one sees a friend and wants to hear what news the friend has and what the friend has been doing the some one will say: 'What have you to say for yourself?'"

"I see," said the second squirrel.

"And by that I mean that I both see and understand. I believe the expression 'I see' often means just the same as 'I understand'."

"Very often, very often, in fact frequently," the others said.

"Now let us hear you," they added, "and your real name."

"I," said the second squirrel, "am known as the Southern Fox Squirrel, and hearing something about a fox I did not know whether you were mentioning part of my name or not."

"No," said the Coati, "the first Mr. Squirrel here was remarking that I looked a little like a fox."

"But we are delighted to have you join our conversation."

"Thank you, thank you," said the Southern Fox Squirrel. "Before I came to the zoo I lived in Florida," he continued after a moment.

"Do you like my suit?"

"I like different colors in fur, so my tummy is covered with yellow fur and my back and tail are of simple but very nice black."

"You're handsome," said the Coati.

"And you, first Mr. Squirrel, won't you tell us about yourself?"

"I'd be delighted to, I am sure," said the first squirrel. "I am called the Variable Squirrel because I have such a variety of colors."

"The Southern Fox Squirrel."

"My tummy is covered with red fur. My tail is of gray and black."

"The top part of my body, in fact, my head, is covered with brown and gray fur."

"You're well named," said the Coati. "Well, it's nice to know the names of one's neighbors in the zoo, and when the others in this house of small animals are not so sleepy, let us find out more about each, eh?"

And the squirrels agreed that it would be a good plan to become acquainted with their neighbors in the zoo.

go to sleep if you will excuse me."

And the Wombat, the funny little Wombat, still lying on his back, went sound, sound asleep.

He did not pay attention to anything for a long time. Sleep was so pleasant.

"The zoo is nice," said the white-nosed Coati.

He hoped some other animal would feel like a little chat, now that Wombat had gone to sleep.

And, sure enough, one of the squirrels blinked his eyes and looking at the Coati, said:

"If you were a little fatter you'd look like a fox."

"That's what so many say," the white-nosed Coati answered.

"Another squirrel has awakened and is ready for a talk," he added after a moment.

"Yes," said the second squirrel, "I am ready for a chat."

"Good," the others said.

And then added:

"What are you going to say for yourself?"

"Well," the second squirrel replied, "I am certainly not going to say my say for some one else. I am the one who is going to chat and so I don't chat for another creature."

"I chat for myself."

"Oh, that's just a saying," one of the others said. "When some one sees a friend and wants to hear what news the friend has and what the friend has been doing the some one will say: 'What have you to say for yourself?'"

SOMETHING GOOD

There is no lack of good common things that one may serve her family. But variety means studying the market, using judgment in buying and brains in cooking.

Veal With Cat-soup—Take one veal steak, one medium-sized onion, four slices of bacon cut very thin, one-half cupful of catsup, salt, pepper and two cupfuls of boiling water. Fry the bacon, brown the veal in the bacon fat, add the boiling water, onions, catsup, salt and pepper. Cook very slowly for an hour and a half, adding more water if needed, having one cupful of the liquid when it is ready to serve.

Asparagus and Meat Souffle—Take a can of asparagus and two cupfuls of chopped meat, two cupfuls of meat stock, use the liquor from the asparagus, three eggs well beaten, whites and yolks separately, two tablespoonfuls of flour, with salt and pepper to taste. Cook the meat, egg yolks, flour and stock together for five minutes. Add the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into a casserole which has been lined with the stalks of asparagus. Put the rest of the asparagus in the center. Bake until firm. Serve garnished with asparagus tips.

Cream Puffs—Put one-half cupful of boiling water together into a saucepan. As soon as the mixture is boiling, add one cupful of flour all at once, stirring vigorously until smooth. Remove from the heat, cool a little and add four eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Drop the mixture by spoonfuls on buttered sheets, leaving room to spread. Make the puffs as high as possible in the center. Bake thirty minutes or until they seem light when lifted from the pan. When very light, they are done. Cool and slit with a knife on one side, making the opening large enough to fill the shell with a cooked cream, sweetened and flavored whipped cream, or for very nice occasions, fill with vanilla ice cream and serve with a chocolate sauce.

Nominations for Driving Club

Sixty-four names placed in nomination from among which fifteen will be selected for directors on Monday Night. The first annual meeting of the Ulster County Riding and Driving Club was held Monday evening at the court house for the purpose of electing 15 directors and for the transaction of routine business. The meeting was called to order by Roy M. Suttiff with Harry Walker acting as secretary. Adoption of by-laws was the first business taken up. County Judge Joseph M. Fowler discussed the matter with those present and after explaining the matter a discussion among the members followed after which the by-laws were adopted. Then came the question of election of directors. The room was crowded with members and everyone seemed to have someone to place in nomination. Under the by-laws of the club the first ballot is a nominating ballot and the second is the election ballot, the highest fifteen being elected. The first five highest are elected for three years, the second highest five for two years and the third highest five are elected for one year. At the conclusion of the first ballot the inspectors of election took up the matter of counting the votes and after an hour's work decided that it would be impossible to make an election that evening. The meeting then adjourned with the inspectors of election busy with the nominating vote. This result was not learned until three hours after the vote had been taken. An adjournment was taken until Monday, November 30, at 8 o'clock at the court house when the election will be held. The list of nominations which includes 64 names will be placed before the meeting at that time and from these 64 names the fifteen directors will be elected. The elected directors will meet afterward and will elect officers. Under the by-laws the officers need not be elected from among the board of directors. Going Around the World Bird-Wise

A great many in the audience at the high school auditorium tomorrow evening when Lieutenant Jack Harding gives his lecture on his flight around the world will readily recall the day when the question of man-flight was a very doubtful one. The then impossible has been happening so long that people are not overdually impressed with man-birds today unless they make some amazing flight. That is what "Smiling Jack Harding" and his associates did. They out-flew the birds at their own game and flew all around the world.

While their discoveries were not comparable with those of Columbus, still the firstness of such an expedition makes it parallel and the two adventures were about equally hazardous. This lecture will be geography and history do luxe for both grown-ups and school children, besides being tremendously entertaining as both the movies and the "stills" are remarkably fine.

The Federation of Women's Clubs, which is bringing Lieutenant Harding to Kingston hopes that the high school auditorium will be filled tomorrow evening to greet Lieutenant Harding. Moreover, if this happens, not only will it mean a big audience delighted and instructed but a little extra money with which the federation women may be able to do some philanthropic and educational work they have in mind.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE LONG-NOSED SNOOP.

This inquisitive creature is noted for having more curiosity than nine cats. It lives in coffee roasters because it likes the aroma, but sets out daily in search of a sewing circle where it can pick up crumbs of conversation. When young, the nose and ears are quite long and large, but the nose through use is gradually worn off in key holes. When five years old, the snop becomes quite decrepit and spends its declining days finding out why a chicken crosses a road.

In ancient times the snop was a water bird, and had large flat feet for walking on mill ponds. Today, having left the water because there was nothing there to investigate, the snop has legs but no feet.

The body is a peanut, and the head a filbert with a clove nose. The ears are split lima beans and the legs toothpicks. The inquisitive expression is pen and ink.

The show window of the Canfield Supply Company on the Strand reminds one that Christmas is drawing near. PAY HIGH PRICES FOR "HORN BOOKS"

Collectors Prize Oldtime School Equipment.

It is no longer so "silent, in the world of today, to have acquired the "three R's"—reading, writing and arithmetic. The simple old dame's school of a hundred years ago seems never to have been possible.

Another great difference is in the school equipment. In the old days pen, ink and paper were scarce, blackboards and chalk were unheard of, and even slates and slate pencils were luxuries. How, then, were the children taught their letters or initiated into the mysteries of even the simplest sums?

At the earliest period they learned from a "Horn Book." What was this now forgotten thing? Is there today anyone familiar with the appearance of a horn book? None. Collectors prize them, for they are extremely rare, though once they were almost as common as railway or street car tickets are now.

A horn book consisted of a flat piece of wood of about one eighth of an inch thickness, and of some three and one-half inches to six inches in length, and about two thirds of these measurements in breadth. It was provided with a handle by which the child held it. On this flat piece of wood, commonly oak, was placed a printed piece of paper, generally bearing the alphabet and the Lord's prayer, and sometimes the numerals as well.

The paper was kept in position and guarded from injury by being placed under a thin transparent sheet of horn, secured by a brass edging. Hence "horn book." In the older kind the type used was of the Gothic, "black-letter" Old English sort. The earliest known horn book dates back to about 1460.

With the growing use of paper and print, chap books and small primers, the vogue of the horn book declined, and it went entirely out of use at the opening of the Nineteenth century. The last order for a stock of these articles was given by a firm of English stationers in 1790, and as the then old-fashioned things proved unsalable the unwanted stock was destroyed some years later.

Horn books are now so rare that high prices are given by collectors for genuine specimens. When, in 1877, the Caxton exhibition of printing antiquities was held, only four specimens of horn books were shown; and at another exhibition held in 1882, only eight.

No. 2 Lost

Sir Henry Wood, the London musician, said to a New York reporter: "Most of our modern English music is excellent but some of it makes me feel as merciless as De Reszke."

"Two amateur tenors once visited Edouard De Reszke at his beautiful Nice villa. They said they had a bet on as to which of them was the better singer, and they wanted De Reszke to decide.

"Well, he listened to them both, and then he said to the one who had sung first: "You are the worst singer in the world."

"Hurrah! I win, then," said the second.

"No," said De Reszke, "for you can't sing at all."

Esperanto Spreading

A summer university in psychology, languages and international law, with Esperanto as the language of instruction, was conducted this summer in Geneva in connection with the seventeenth universal Esperanto congress meeting there—the first time in history that an artificial language has been used in that way. Esperantists from many parts of the world attended the congress, the culmination of various national congresses previously held in the most important European countries, in America and Japan. Almost every civilized country now issues a publication in Esperanto and the national language, and about eighteen magazines are published in Esperanto only.

This Is No Joke

In these days of the high cost of living the following story has a decided point.

The teacher of a primary class was trying to show the children the difference between the natural and man-made wonders and was finding it hard. "What," she asked, "do you think is the most wonderful thing man ever made?"

A little girl, whose parents were obviously harassed by the question of ways and means, replied as solemnly as the proverbial judge:

"A living for a family."—Exchange.

Carpet of Trees

The worms are weighted down by stones. Young trees grow up from them, which prevent the river washing away the shore.

The Time Is Here

Perhaps wise old Mother Nature decided to make our girls, most of them at least, slightly knock-kneed because she foresaw a time, viz., the present, when a little friction as they walked around would be badly needed to supply warmth and keep up the circulation.—Ohio State Journal.

Dr. Textor Talks on Russian Writers

Contrasts Opposite Types of Two Noted Russian Authors and Their Books—Their Influence in Russia and Elsewhere.

This week Dr. Textor's Russian lecture given at the chapel of the First Dutch Church under the patronage of the Monday Club, dealt most interestingly with two great Russian authors: Dostoevsky and Turgenev.

Dr. Textor gave a sympathetic account of the life of Dostoevsky who was born in the hospital of a workhouse in 1821, his father being a surgeon in the hospital, which was a government institution. His parents were both of middle class rank, and in straitened circumstances but finally managed to secure a little country home where Theodore got what little childish pleasure he had, his father being a very strict man, knowing little but duty.

After the death of Theodore's father when he was about sixteen and his mother two years later, he went to the school of engineers in St. Petersburg. Having finished his course there he gave up any idea of engineering, which was distasteful to him, and poor as he was he turned to literature.

"Poor Folks" Gained Fame.

About this time he wrote his book, "Poor Folks," which Dr. Textor described and which made him temporarily famous. From then on the story of his life in prison, in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul and later in Siberia, was one of almost unendurable hardship. After his release from the Siberian prison where he was incarcerated for four years he lived in Siberia, marrying there. It was there that he wrote, "The House of the Dead," or "Buried Alive," describing his prison experiences and thoughts. After the death of his wife and a brother he returned to St. Petersburg and assumed an enormous debt left by the brother. At this time he wrote "Crime and Punishment."

Married His Stenographer.

Later, being hounded because of his slowness in paying his brother's debts, he married his stenographer and they fled to Germany, Switzerland and Italy, where he wrote prodigiously, though in very poor health. "The Demon," and "The Idiot," are books of this period. Finally he returned to St. Petersburg where an editorial position and the publication of his greatest book, "The Brothers Karamazoff," restored him to favor among his people and the remainder of his life was in comfort. He is considered the greatest psychologist in literature and was often sought by great criminologists for information. After reading several sketches from his writings, Dr. Textor summed up Dostoevsky as "The Apostle of Pity."

Turgenev An Aristocrat.

Born into absolutely different circumstances—nobility and wealth—Turgenev was brought up under one peculiar circumstance in his home—his mother's studies and extreme cruelty to her serfs. After an education abroad Turgenev made his home with two friends, whose home was outside of Russia. Therefore most of Turgenev's books were written outside of Russia. Dr. Textor considered that "A Hunter's Diary" or a Sportsman's Sketches" did the most good as it must have exerted a considerable influence toward the emancipation of the serfs in 1861. "Virgin Soil" was another of his famous books. While Dostoevsky believed that Russia was sufficient unto herself and needed no aid from the West, Turgenev believed that in order to rise to her greatest heights Russia must have help from the West.

Deplored Too Much Talk.

In "Smoke," the author vividly depicts the much talking at random without achievement that is the curse of the Slav temperament. The works of Turgenev are models of perfect form and it was due to his influence and often to his financial generosity that so much of the Russian literature was translated into French. He was endlessly kind to Tolstoy whom he appreciated in spite of Tolstoy's dislike of him. An aristocrat to the marrow, he was most appreciative of those less well born, generous and withal a great writer, and his death was a truly great loss to France as well as to Russia.

Next Monday Dr. Textor will lecture on "St. Petersburg and Moscow."

Chicken Pie Supper.

Immanuel Ladies' Aid Society of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church will give their annual chicken pie supper on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, in the hall, with Mrs. Daly catering. Albany, Nov. 24.—With the biggest population gain for any five years since 1870, Dutchess county is given a present population, according to the 1925 census figures, of 99,028, which represents a growth of 7,281 for the five years past. Every incorporated village in the county and every town but three are shown with gains, according to the report just made public by Secretary of State Knapp. The present growth is in marked contrast to the gain of but 703 made by the county between 1915 and 1920, when every incorporated village and all but one of the towns failed to register gains. The population of Poughkeepsie was announced some time ago as being 35,670, while Beacon has 11,621.

The business girls' club will omit the regular Wednesday supper and also the Tuesday and Thursday luncheons will not be served this week. However, the senior girls will have their annual party for their men friends on Saturday evening, November 28, from 8 until 11 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the Black Cap orchestra, and a jolly time is anticipated. The committee in charge of the party is headed by Miss Harriet Minter. All senior members and their friends are cordially invited. Mrs. Seth Staples, chairman of the association hospitality committee, is cooperating with the girls in their plans, and she with several members of the board of directors and committees will act as chaperones.

Separate Coat in New Winter Modes

Garment Should Be Chosen
With Future Costumes in Mind.

Always excepting the new hat, or the new little frillery that is needed to add a piquant air to the plainness of the costume that is a legacy from the season past, the separate coat is far and away the most important acquisition of the new mode. Against its background—of fabric, color and line—will be built the costumes that the season to come will demand.

And these separate coats differ very little, if at all, from the ensemble coats bought as a part of a costume suit. They fall, naturally, into the same divisions of the suit, some model of which is possible for every occasion of the day from early morning until late evening—or early morning again! For they are military, sports, semi-formal and formal, with a generous representation of tailored types.

It will be readily seen that the separate coat is an economy, since it may be chosen with future costumes in mind, and its color may be, in a way, a dependable one, against which gaiety and brightness and unusual shades may be silhouetted. If it is to be really serviceable, it must not be chosen in one of the "off" shades—let the frock be chosen thus—but in a tone that will harmonize with many other tones.

Since one's first impression of the costume ensemble is the outer wrap it may truly be said that the outfit will stand or fall by the coat of it. And the very fact that more of these costumes are made up of contrasting fabrics than all of one material adds appreciably to the value of the separate coat. For the cloth coat may have a dress of any fabric, and velvet combines with cloth, crepe or silk.

And popularity of the ensemble or of harmonizing colors, is another factor in the success of the coat designed for general wear with a variety of dresses, resulting in a variety of costumes. And designers of coats—playing up to the ensemble idea—have made individual selection enticingly easy.

The warning—New coats feature materials with a soft, rich pile. And there will be a deal of velvet, if fashion displays have been any indication. The wools and velvets alike are remarkably supple and easy to manipulate.

Plisse Effects Seen in American Fashions

Where the straight silhouette appears in this season's fashions it does not have the uncompromisingly severe lines of last year, but is given a certain fluid grace by cleverly concealed godets and platings. Plisse effects, which always have been featured in French frocks but which recently only have been made an integral part of American fashions, frequently are seen.

One reason for this is that since the plisses are usually put in by hand it is a long and tedious process. But designers have found that the results more than justify the time taken in making them.

Many are extremely intricate and suggest honeycomb effects or smocking, while in others there is an appearance of diagonal or herringbone stripes.

Hints on How to Make Footwear Comfortable

Buckled shoes are sometimes loose around the instep. If the portion of leather to which the buckle is sewn is unsewn and firmly stitched a little further back inside the shoe, this will tighten it, and give greater comfort to the wearer.

Shoes a little too big and which may be made comfortable by placing a small length of narrow ribbon or wire in the heel of the shoe with one end of a pair of little fixtures sold at most shoemakers for the purpose.

If a patient shoe pinches any part of the foot a rag soaked in boiling water should be placed over the part while the foot is in the shoe, and the leather will soften to the shape of the foot.

Long-Sleeved Dinner Gowns Have an Elegance All Their Own, and That Many Women Affect Them.

When long-sleeved dinner gowns first came upon the horizon, they were of chiffon, and the sleeves, flowing wide of the forearm usually were bordered with embroidery. The present taste in dinner gowns is for the sleeve to mold the arm, this being true of Chantilly lace dresses and of brocades or velvets. A cobweb black lace gown made en princess but with a flare beginning somewhere the knees, may have such sleeves and a slip of metal cloth or flesh satin. Brocade dresses, and even beaded ones, may be made after this fashion, the neckline usually being in the wide straight medieval line or else cut in a rather deep square, both contours being in harmony with the fitted sleeve.

Satin appears to lead in evening fabrics, judging from a coterie setting sail to be in Rome and the Riviera during the season. Several of these are fur trimmed, not always in the obvious border effect, for sometimes only a circular godet at one side is fur bordered. All shades of wine, and in this juncture, it may be well to mention that all wines are not red, are liked in satins, there are mahogany shades, bordeaux and tokyas, and colors which seem at first glance to be more appropriate for luncheon than dinner. In this classification come the curious greens which are now very high in the estimation of the smart world. A dinner gown of black satin bordered with green and bordered with gold, a dinner gown of black crepe, with a duo lounced apron deeply bordered with sapphire velvet, these are two of the choices women who are prone to black, may make. Black and gold is, of course, chic, for is not every- one agog over gold just now. (Copyright, 1925, Fairchild.)

Half the world is half asleep

It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings care and relief from this disease.

"Poor Betty! She always looks tired"

BETTY was the office mystery. Once pretty, her beauty now lay masked behind an unwholesome complexion. Once vivacious, she now seemed eternally tired—a drooping figure of disappointment and dismay. Too bad she didn't realize that it was constipation which was stealing her strength.

But many men and women rid themselves forever of this devastating disease, by the simple, pleasant means of eating two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—or in chronic cases, with every meal.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. It is what doctors call a bulk food—a bulk food which sweeps the intestine clean—a bulk food which absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, stimulating natural, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over cereals; cooked with hot cereals; in soups, or made into the many recipes given on the package. Delicious with fruit, baked apple, etc.

Caution: Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. A part-bran product can only be partially effective. Kellogg's is the one, only and original ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Buy a package today. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Served in leading restaurants and hotels.

Census Bureau Does Big Work

Detailed Information Gathered by Federal Officials Covers Wide Range—Statistics of Agriculture Outstanding Feature of the Past Year—Other Facts Collected.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 24.—During the past year the Bureau of the Census, according to the annual report just issued by Director William M. Stewart, collected detailed reports concerning agriculture from about 6,370,000 farms; tabulated statistics of manufactures, including forest products, from data collected at the biennial census for 1922, covering 350 industries; collected 2,000,685 certificates of births and 1,191,301 certificates of deaths, containing all the detail available and required by law; issued reports giving detailed statistics relating to the 1,129,046 marriages and 148,818 divorces recorded for the calendar year 1922; and secured detailed reports from 248 cities and 43 states regarding public debt, taxes and costs of government and public works.

Census of Agriculture.
The outstanding work of the bureau during the year was the census of agriculture, taken as of January 1, 1925. This is the first mid-decennial census taken under the act of March 3, 1919. It required the appointment (or, in a few cases, transfer from other duties) and instruction of 204 supervisors, 23,945 enumerators and 2,352 clerks for work in the offices of the supervisors and in Washington—a total temporary force of 26,491. This was the first time in the history of American census taking that a special effort was made to secure the services of persons identified with agriculture in taking a farm census. The presidents of state agriculture colleges recommended suitable persons to act as supervisors. Forest rangers of the department of agriculture enumerated the farms in the vicinity of forest reserves, employees of the Bureau of Reclamation canvassed those on irrigation projects, and Indian agents collected the data for farms on Indian reservations. By securing the cooperation of these various agencies and by other economies a net saving of approximately $500,000 was made in the cost of enumeration as compared with that of 1920.

Census of Manufactures.
Prior to 1900 the census of manufactures was taken only at 10-year intervals in connection with the regular decennial censuses of population and agriculture. The act of March 3, 1902, contained a provision for five-year inquiry, and four quinquennial censuses were taken thereunder, the first for 1904 and the last for 1919. The act of March 3, 1919, provided for a biennial census of manufactures, and under this law the censuses of 1921 and 1923 were taken and a similar census will be taken for 1925.

"An important phase of the manufacturing work," as stated by Director Stewart, "is the preparation of a correct list of manufacturing establishments." The great turnover of "mortality" during the two-year, together with consolidation, reorganizations, and changes in names, necessitates a complete revision of the card index. Of the 196,000 establishments reporting at the census for 1923, it is safe to assume that fewer than 150,000 will appear in the records of the next census under the same names. This turnover necessitates not only the revision of the card index but also the careful explanations of the purposes and methods of the census to a large group of manufacturers who are called upon for the first time to supply the census data.

Births and Deaths.
One of the most important of the many statistical inquiries conducted by the Government is the Census Bureau's collection of data in regard to births and deaths. The annual mortality statistics give the number of deaths from each cause in each locality, and thus make it possible to measure the toll exacted by each cause of death from year to year. Such figures serve as the foundation of public health work. They indicate to the public health officer the most promising direction for the expenditure of funds appropriated for such work, and they clearly show what degrees of success have attended the campaigns for better health in former years. The declines in the infant mortality rate and in the death rates from typhoid fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis, and many other diseases afford striking proof of the success of former campaigns, but one view with concern the continually mounting rates from cancer and heart diseases.

Record of Auto Fatalities.
Believing that the frequent presentation of statistical information regarding motor-vehicle fatalities will be a factor in bringing about a greater degree of safety on the public highways, the Bureau of the Census is now publishing, every four weeks, telegraphic returns of such fatalities from cities of 100,000 population or more, and is endeavoring to collect data which will permit the publication annually of two sets of death rates from motor-vehicle accidents—one referring to the number of deaths reported from each locality, regardless of where the accidents occurred, and the other representing the number of deaths due to accidents in each locality, regardless of where the deaths occurred. The collection of these important data is being made possible by the hearty cooperation of state, city and local officials everywhere.

Survey of Current Business.
The Survey of Current Business is a monthly publication whose purpose is to supply to business men the current basic statistics in important lines of industrial and commercial activity. These statistics are a rule show monthly transactions, but in a few cases they are based on data collected quarterly or semi-annually.

Banquet in Honor Of Dr. Leavitt

Farewell Dinner Given in Honor of Rabbi Leavitt Sunday Evening at the Steindler Home on Pierpont Street.

Sunday night a farewell dinner was given in honor of Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt, the distinguished rabbi of Kingston, at the home of S. Steindler, 112 West Pierpont street, by a group of friends and admirers. It was one of the most elaborate banquets that Kingston has ever seen.

Mayor Morris Block and many other speakers paid high tribute to the many-sided activities of Dr. Leavitt and declared that Kingston Jewry will miss one of the foremost citizens, one of the eloquent speakers and one of the fearless champions of truth and idealism. "Many of us became better citizens and better Jews," remarked one of the speakers, "after listening to the inspiring lectures of our great leader Dr. Leavitt. He taught us the ideals of Judaism and the essentials of Americanism, and his words always penetrated the hearts of all his hearers."

Mr. Miller presented Dr. Leavitt with a set of silver, saying that the silver is given to him in appreciation of his silver-tongued orations, etc.

Moved to tears, Dr. Leavitt rose and among unanimous ovations and cheers he thanked the gathering for the honor bestowed upon him and said in part, "The hour of departure is always sad, the word farewell rings like a funeral dirge, but I find consolation in the thought that I did my very best for Kingston during my stay here. I was always ready to teach, to instruct, to enlighten, to guide. I was ever ready to give the best in me to every good and worthy cause. I tried to raise higher the standard of Kingston Jewry and I succeeded quite a bit. My efforts were not in vain. I leave Kingston with the friendliest feelings and I hope that this city will prosper and become the queen of the Hudson valley."

Among the guests were: Dr. and Mrs. E. Leavitt and their little daughter Beatrice; the Hon. Mayor Morris Block, M. Miller, S. Spier, Mr. and Mrs. A. Tomkin, Mr. and Mrs. G. Kramer, M. Bahl, Mr. and Mrs. S. Gold, Mr. and Mrs. M. Weinberger, Mr. and Mrs. H. Netburn, Mr. and Mrs. L. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. D. Kantrowitz, Mr. and Mrs. S. Steindler, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirchner, Mr. and Mrs. M. Gasool, Mr. and Mrs. I. Goldman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Siegel, Mr. and Mrs. D. Samuels, B. Samuels and Professor of Music M. Balough, who rendered a number of solos and also spoke very entertainingly.

Memory May Be Poor
I have observed that my recollections of old times are not reliable, and I do not have much faith in the recollections of other old-timers. Much they say they experienced is a vague story they have heard others tell. And old people are not very truthful, anyway.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

annually. "Business as a whole," says Director Stewart, "is more and more looking to current industrial facts for guidance, and the large increase in the number of statistical inquiries undertaken during the past few years, both by the government, on the initiative of industrial and trade associations, and by the associations themselves in order to provide such data for executive judgment, is in itself evidence of their usefulness." At the close of the fiscal year 1922 trade and industrial associations were supplying the bureau with regular statistical reports for publication in the Survey of Current Business. The data in these reports were collected by the associations directly from the separate establishments and were sent to the bureau of publication. In every case the publication is general, the information being made available to all persons irrespective of their interests or industrial affiliations.

The Shawl
The shawl was introduced into Europe at the time of Napoleon's return from Egypt, where he was fascinated by the alluring garments worn so lavishly by the orientals. It is said that he bought for the Empress Josephine over four hundred of these shawls at one time, and that one of his caprices was that he should never see the same shawl upon her shoulders twice in succession.

MacNeill Resigns
From Cabinet

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Dublin, Nov. 24.—Dr. John MacNeill, minister of education, has resigned from the Free State cabinet. It is reported this afternoon.

Further reports state that the entire cabinet may resign, as a protest against the British attitude on the Ulster boundary.

Dr. MacNeill resigned from the boundary commission on Saturday because of a drafted report which is understood to have proposed that Ulster be given a considerable amount of Irish Free State territory. The Irish Free State cabinet re-assembled today to consider what action it will take as the result of the resignation of Dr. John MacNeill from the Irish boundary commission.

Whether the Free State cabinet will appoint a successor to MacNeill remains to be decided.

Alice Planned to Meet 'Blue Bloods'

Mrs. Rich Describes Plans Made by Young Rhinelanders to Mix With the Elite—Introduces Affidavit Stating Jacobs Warned Her of the Ku Klux Klan.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Plans for the debut of Alice Jones Rhinelander, quadron bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, into the elite of New York society was described today by Mrs. Marian Rich of Mount Vernon, N. Y., at the marriage annuity trial brought by young Rhinelander against his wife on the ground she deceived him as to her negro blood.

Three weeks before they separated, the witness said, it was planned to present Alice to the aristocratic Philip Rhinelander, Leonard's father, to show him "what a nice girl Leonard had married."

"They intended going through the social register to choose people to invite to the party," Mrs. Rich revealed on the witness stand. "That was Alice's idea and she was going to have some of her friends there to meet the 'blue bloods.'"

Alice planned to get an interior decorator, a butler, and lots of fine dishes and silver for the big event, Mrs. Rich testified.

Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, next introduced an affidavit made by Mrs. Rich in which she stated that Alice had told that Leon R. Jacobs of Rhinelander counsel, had informed Alice it was best for Leonard and her to separate because the Ku Klux Klan was becoming active in the case and also to escape the newspaper reporters.

A luncheon recess then was declared.

Threat Does Not Move Coolidge

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 24.—President Coolidge today wrote to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, saying merely he had received his communication concerning the possibilities of a bituminous coal strike, and would reserve statement of the government's position until a later date.

Lewis's letter to the president intimated that a bituminous strike might follow the anthracite tie up unless the government intervened to "make the operators live up to the Jacksonville agreement."

There was little to indicate today, however, that the president intends to abandon his policy of "hands off" the coal situation.

Prohibits Wine For Home Use
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 24.—A drastic order aimed to prevent manufacture of thousands of gallons of home made wine was issued today by L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement.

Permits issued under the old revenue laws allowing manufacture of 200 gallons annually of wine by heads of families were revoked by Andrews's order.

The new regulations declared that manufacture of wine, even in the home, is prohibited.

Grape growing states will be hard hit by the order.

Knowledge Spread by Ancient Playing Cards

A collection of 18 varieties of playing cards was recently shown in London, where they were viewed with much interest. The earliest pack is of the Thirteenth century. It has crude fanciful figures etched on thin plates of horn, backed with paper. Several packs, dated between 1714-1765, are known as geography packs. They have complicated maps of much information on foreign countries. The 1790 cards are adorned with sketches, showing incidents in various fables with verses. There is a natural history pack, one dealing with astronomy, and one with words and music. The more modern pack, the simpler the design. A playing card expert suggests that the decline in adornment was due to modern brains being more active than those of old. "Three hundred years ago, people's brains worked much slower than they do now," he says. "Consequently, card games took longer, and it was natural that there should be some interesting matter for players to read. The speed of card playing has undoubtedly increased tremendously."—Exchange.

Confucius "Written Up"

In the year 1403, Yung Lo, emperor of China, ordered that there be compiled in a single work all that had been written about the Confucian doctrine, together with an account of the life of Confucius and all collateral matter connected in any way with the teacher and his philosophy. To complete the task there was a staff of 2,141 scholars, 20 sub-directors, five directors and three commissioners, and the work took five years. The finished work consisted of 22,877 sections bound into 11,100 volumes each half an inch thick. The expense of printing being found too great, two copies were made about the year 1567. The original and one of the copies were destroyed when the Ming dynasty fell, in 1644. The remaining copy, except five volumes, was destroyed in a revolutionary outbreak.—Dearborn Independent.

Phrases That Are Old

A phrase frequently heard is "necessity is the mother of invention." But few realize how old it is. We find it in the "Republic" of Plato: "The true creator is necessity, who is the mother of our invention."

When Diraell gave the alternative title of "The Two Nations" to his novel "Sphinx," to emphasize the gulf which lay between the rich and the poor of the same country, he was echoing Plato. "Any city," said Plato, "however small, is in fact divided into two, one the city of the poor the other of the rich."

Another very modern note is struck by Sir Thomas Moore in "Utopia," where, talking of education and environment, he says, "You first make thieves and then punish them."

Measuring in Tons

Two men were disputing as to the weight of an inch of rainfall. "I read somewhere that it is 101 tons of water to the acre," said one. "No," said the other. "I'm positive the correct figure is 113 tons." The weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture says that both are right. The rainfall in the first instance was reduced by the long run, or 2,249 pounds, the common ton in Great Britain. The long ton is used for some purposes in this country, but the short ton of 2,000 pounds, which gave the second result, is more usual here.

Can Always Do That

Tim—You know, when I get an old and feeble that I can't do anything but sit around I want to die off.
Bang—I don't. I want to live just as long as possible.
Tim—What do you think you'll get out of life when you get old like that?
Bang—Boy, I'll get a big kick out of just sitting around and crabbins' about how the younger generation is going to the bow-wow.

"Red" Grange played his last game of college football before 65,000 fans. Now the phantom flyer of Illinois turns his thoughts to the countless offers for his services, ranging from professional football at fabulous pay to sheikdom in the movies.

High Life

An Indianapolis young woman who has always had her own notions about luxury and independence had this idea of perfect ease: She longed to see the time when she could go shopping, look the things over, make her selections, never asking the price of an article, and say, "Send it up with the bill."

Lately she came into an inheritance and started out to realize her hopes. She visited a department store, tried on a handsome gown, smacked her lips and said, "I'll take it; send it with the bill," figuring to herself it would be $75 or $100. She never asked the price, however. The next day the gown was delivered with the bill and the bill was $12.50.—Indianapolis News.

Skyline Road

In the vicinity of Canon City, Colo., is a unique road. It lies along the summit of a hogback ridge a thousand feet above the surrounding plain on both sides. This drive is about 2 1/2 miles wide, it winds to and fro and sweeps gently up and down on the narrow crest for about four miles. The view from this skyline is beyond description. The top of this ridge is really the "skyline" on the west of Canon City, and as vehicles are driven along the skyline for miles they are silhouetted against the sky in a very interesting fashion. Thousands of auto visit this place every year to take a ride over this unique road, which is as smooth as a city street. It is a monument to John Cleghorn, warden of the State prison, who has the work done by convicts, free to the state.

Briand Will Not
Form a Cabinet

Refusal of Socialists to Participate Compels Aristide Briand to Give Up Attempt—Recommends Senator Doumer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 24.—Aristide Briand will not attempt to form a French cabinet, he announced this afternoon. "I am compelled to give up my attempt to form a cabinet," Briand said, as he went to the Elysee Palace to give his decision to President Doumergue.

"I had hoped to form a cabinet of representatives of all parties, each party conserving its full responsibility, but the Socialists refuse to participate," said M. Briand. After advising the president of his inability to form a cabinet, Briand advised that Senator Paul Doumer be invited to take the task.

The Socialists, it is understood, demanded not only half of the cabinet portfolios, but they also insisted on dictating the financial and colonial policy.

"I understand the Socialists' refusal to support me," said M. Briand, leaving the presidential palace.

"Their reasons were honorable. I could have formed a cabinet but it wouldn't have been strong enough to stand long."

BOSTON SOLD BABE
RUTH FOR $100,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 24.—An echo of the sale of Babe Ruth by the Boston Red Sox to the New York Yankees appeared at the treasury today when the Federal Board of tax appeals decided that the Boston club owes to the government an additional tax of $27,575 in the transaction that sent Ruth and Carl Mays to the Yankees.

Incidentally, it was disclosed in the records that the sale price of the great king was $100,000, and for Mays $40,000. In the latter case, however, two players figured, Allen Russell and Robert E. McGraw.

FAVORITE DRESSER

GETS QUEEN'S WARDROBE
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 24.—Queen Alexandra's wardrobe, valued at more than $50,000, has been bequeathed to her favorite dresser, Mrs. Coles. It is understood.

The late queen mother's body lying in state today at Sandringham has become almost a shrine. From all corners of Norfolk the simple folk of the countryside are coming to view the body.

London is prepared to make Friday a day of deep mourning. All business activities, including the theaters, will be closed during the hour of the funeral.

Bandits Held Up Town

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Casper, Mich., Nov. 24.—Five bandits held possession of this town for three hours early today, firing scores of shots and terrorizing citizens while they attempted to blow the vault of the First National Bank. They fled in an auto after wounding George Jones, a stock buyer, in the neck.

Historic Islands

Bedloe's island, on which the Statue of Liberty stands, was ceded to the United States government for the purpose of harbor defense and it was occupied by Fort Wood. We do not find a record of any military prison on the island, though soldiers may have been held in detention there. The neighboring Governor's island has a military prison. It is interesting to note that Bedloe's island or Liberty island has lately been transferred to civil status, having heretofore been considered a part of the military post of Fort Wood. By proclamation in 1923, the statue was made a national monument and its base a national park. The government now makes separate appropriations for the army post on the island and for the upkeep of the statue, most of this being for lighting.—

Experiments With Static Reduction

This Simple Apparatus Can Be Used in Home-
 Made Device.

By C. W. RADOS, in the Boston Globe.
 An experiment in eliminating static (and other disturbances) which is interesting to try is found in the use of "resonance wave coils."

For broadcast work, 222 to 666 meters, use a cardboard tube three inches in diameter and 20 inches long. Wind a single layer of No. 28 double cotton covered wire and do not use any shellac or other liquid. Wind on lightly and secure the ends by passing through small holes in the tube.

 Then carefully place over the wire a layer of paper for the brass rings to slide on. Get a brass ring one inch wide and 3 3/16 inches in diameter.
 Cut it with a hack saw as shown
 (Fig. 1), then solder a flexible lead to the outside and slip the ring over the coil, increasing the diameter if necessary by forcing it.

Another Brass Tube.

Another brass tube 5 inches to 10 inches long and 3 3/16 inches in diameter is slipped over the other end of the coil and fastened there. A string and pulley arrangement is rigged up so that the small brass ring can slide up and down. Figure 2 shows the idea.
 Arrange the string on a big dial as shown so that the ring is very easy to move up and down. An indicating device is necessary, as well as a vernier adjustment on the dial, because the wave coil tunes very sharply. For the wavetraps use a 0.0005 mfd. variable condenser. The coil is 60 turns No.

 24 double cotton covered wire on a three-inch tube. Use no liquid on the tube if possible and connect it rigidly to the condenser. The wave coil is best mounted a few feet away from the receiver so that body capacity effects will not be noticed.

Tuning Resonance Coil.

The diagram of connections is given in (Fig. 3). First tune in your station as usual, then close the switch connecting the wavetraps. When the trap is connected in, the station will disappear. To get it back without static or interference the following method is used: Leaving the brass coil A at one end slowly turn the wavetraps condenser throughout its entire scale. If the station is not heard move the brass coil A to a different position and vary the condenser (wavetraps) again.

At some adjustment of the two (wavetraps and brass coil) the station which you first tuned in will be heard clearly. However, it must be handled carefully as the device tunes very sharply and it is easy to "jump over" the station when turning the dial.

Most of the information about these coils has been gained through the work of the Army and Navy communication departments. They have been working on this problem of interference for years, and while their development is good, like anything of known design, it is not perfect.

CLAYTON KNEW HE WAS MARKED FOR DEATH

To Telegraph in the Town of Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 24. Police were convinced today that Charles Clayton, former guard on the J. P.
 Morgan estate on Long Island, who mysteriously was murdered, knew he was marked for death by the sum-mering indictment several days before a bullet cut him down in the dark. Clayton was assassinated near the home of F. G. Fenimore, son-in-law of J. P. Morgan.

Clayton is believed to have been killed because he learned the Fenimore estate was being used as a landing place for liquor by the sum-mering band.

Ithaca to Have Municipal Forest

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 24.—The city of Ithaca is going to turn 600 acres of unused land on the city watershed into a municipal forest and will begin planting trees on it next spring. Chairman William M. Driscoll of the city planning commission has placed an order for 10,000 white pine seedlings, 10,000 Scotch pine transplants and 1,000 black locust seedlings with the Conservation Commission for spring delivery as the first step in the planting of the forest.

In a letter accompanying the order, Chairman Driscoll outlines the city's plan of operations as follows: "This is the first step in what we hope to be the turning of the city's 600-acre watershed property into a scientifically treated forest. This area includes 100 acres or more of open pasture land which we want to plant through a series of years, toward which the trees requested here, with are the first installment."

A number of other cities, towns and villages have plans under way for reforesting land that is now non-productive and laying the foundations of municipal forests that will at maturity yield a supply of lumber and wood and in the meantime their watersheds and furnish a refuge for birds and animals.

Forty cities in the state already have planted over 10,000 acres.

TOLEDO'S MANIAC SLUGGER IS STILL AT LARGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 24.—Toledo's mysterious maniac slugger, who has killed two women and injured others since he began his activities last May, was still at large today, in the opinion of authorities, even though last night was unmarked by his activities and the three men are held as suspects.

With rewards totalling $1,500 posted for his capture, police, reinforced by picked men from the American Legion, sheriff's deputies and volunteers, were planning again tonight to patrol every street in the fashionable residential district where the "club killer" worked.

Chief of Police Jennings intends to round up all mental defectives in the city in the hope of capturing the killer.

OPENING OF NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE SEASON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 24.—Pittsburgh and Boston will open the National Hockey League season in a game at the Hub on Thanksgiving Day, according to the official schedule made public today. The New York club, now practicing at Niagara Falls, will be the last of the seven league teams to go into action, the local club meeting Pittsburgh in the latter's rink on December 2.

Thirty-six games will be played by each club, eighteen at home and eighteen away. The rest of the league is composed of Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and the Canadians of Montreal.

Expect Record Crowd at Armory On Thanksgiving

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

On Thursday, Thanksgiving evening, John Spall and team will have very little to be thankful for in the line of support, unless there is a good attendance at the armory to witness the struggle between the Kingston quintet of the Tri-County League and the fast Peerless Five of Newburgh.

A continuance of the small crowds attending the games will compel the local management to withdraw from the league. In the four games played at the local court the attendance was very small, out of town fans being in the majority. The reason for the lack of support of the Kingston team has not been clearly determined. The games are very hard fought and the music for dancing following the games is very good. The new net which has been purchased also helps to make the game faster.

The teams representing other towns in the league have been receiving wonderful support and has created great interest among fans. Undoubtedly Kingston will not be surpassed before many more games are staged. Big league basketball in Kingston was always well supported and the smaller band in time will also be supported when local fandom view a couple of these speedy contests.

The game here Thursday is not a league contest, the strong Newburgh quintet being the attraction. The usual dancing will follow the game and a record holiday crowd is looked for.

Kingston Boys On Pratt Quintet

Affectionately known as "Whitey"

Warren Schmidt, a former Kingston boy and star on the Kingston High School team, is again Pratt Institute's star forward on what is undoubtedly the finest yellow and black aggregation ever assembled on the court. Schmidt ranks high as an intercollegiate forward in the east. Curious as it may seem, his team mate is no other than Ralph "Pat" Longyear, captain of the Pratt team this year. "Pat" is also a Kingston boy. This combination is counted upon for many of the Pratt scores on their very heavy schedule. "Pat" plays a stellar game at guard and both of these men received their varsity letter in their frosh year.

John C. Sim, veteran coach of victorious yellow and black teams, is again coaching the team. He is well known in college circles as a developer of material on the court. Arthur Francis, manager of this all star team, has prepared a schedule which is the heaviest ever attempted. This starts with Cooper Union on December 5 at home.

LOCAL SALVATION ARMY FIVE BEAT HUDSON.

The local Salvation Army Red Shield Club opened its season with a victory over the Boys Club of Hudson, score 34 to 19. The team is composed of last year members with the addition of Dan Joyce who takes the place of Harry Kellner who has entered Hamilton College.

James Merritt has been elected captain of this year's team. The schedule calls for games with S. A. Boys' Club teams from New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York state. Saturday night after the regular games on the Clinton Avenue court the local boys will play the Rome, New York team.

DUSO League Championship

Will Be Decided Thanksgiving Day

When Port Jervis Meets Middletown at the latter's Field—Kingston in Cellar Position.

Duso League football will make its last stand in the Hudson Valley Thanksgiving Day, when Port Jervis and Middletown, two undefeated teams, battle for the championship at Middletown. This will be the greatest game of the year as these clubs clinched for first place clash and will probably attract many Hudson Valley fans. Port Jervis has been playing the Middles for the last 15 years and Port holds the largest number of wins in games played.

The result of the Kingston-Poughkeepsie mixup Saturday puts Poughkeepsie in third place, Newburgh in fourth and the locals in the cellar position.

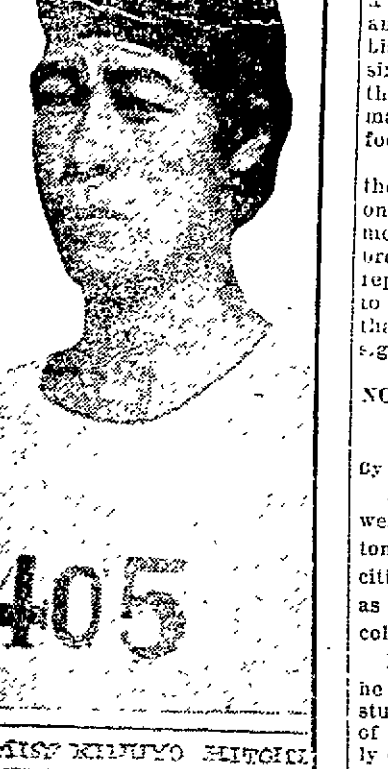

The Port Jervis-Middle battle will be a great contest, although the Port Jervis team has a slight advantage by comparative scores.

JOE GLICK AWARDED DECISION OVER FINNEGAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 24.—"Honey Boy" Finnegan of Boston, touted as the coming featherweight champion, lost the decision to Joe Glick, a comparative unknown, in a ten round bout at the Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, last night. Glick's spectacular rally in the last two rounds caught the popular fancy.

It was Finnegan's debut in a local ring. The crowd, strongly pro-Glick, voiced its approval of the decision but some felt that Finnegan was entitled to the decision because he carried the fight to Glick through the first eight rounds and outslugged him at long range.

Handits Escape With $2,000.

FRIEDMAN MEETS MICKY WALKER WEDNESDAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 24.—With the New Jersey Boxing Commission passing favorably upon the condition of Micky Walker and Sailor Friedman, principals in the semi-championship welterweight bout tomorrow night a sell-out for the promoters was in prospect.

Friedman can win Walker's title by scoring a knockout or winning on a foul. The Jersey commission has ruled that both men must come in at the class limit of 147 pounds. The scheduled distance is 12 rounds.

Crowley May Coach Harvard

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 24.—On reasonably reliable authority, the writer was given to understand today that Harvard football in 1926 will be rescued from the collegiate ash barrel by introducing a composite revival of the Houghton system plus the type of football so ably taught at Notre Dame by Knute Rockne. This startling metamorphosis is to be achieved, it is said, by spring, Charles Crowley, present head coach at Columbia University.

Bob Fisher, so-called head coach at Harvard this year, foresaw the trend of events, recently and resigned. Charles Daly, Fisher's assistant, will be given the same chance, according to the writer's information. Eddie Mahan, for years an under-coach at Soldiers Field, also is to be no more. Mahan has no wish to remain and probably will offer his resignation.

Charles Crowley played a year or so at Notre Dame, and, therefore, absorbed something of the theory and practice of football as expounded at that worthy institution. Then he went to Harvard and played several years under Houghton. Later, when the strong, silent man took hold at Columbia, Crowley was chosen as one of his assistants for the reason that he was and is a disciple of the game that Houghton knew and advocated.

This season Crowley has developed a team that lost only to Ohio State and Cornell, the best record a Columbia team has made under any coach since the said days of 1905, when the faculty abolished football for many seasons and threw Columbia football for a loss of ten years.

Crowley's contract expires after the conclusion of the Syracuse game on Thanksgiving Day, at which moment, we are informed, he will be properly approached by a Harvard representative. If Harvard is willing to spend the money, there is no doubt that it can and will get Crowley to sign the contract.

NORTHWESTERN STUDENTS STAGED A RIOT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 24.—Northwestern University students, Evanston police and numerous officials and citizens were nursing injuries today as the result of a riot staged by the college boys last night.

Mayor Bartlett was slugged when he tried to stop the disorder. The students overturned the automobile of Police Chief Wiltberger and badly damaged it. Two policemen were badly beaten.

The rioting continued for three hours. Tear bombs and fire arms used by police failed to quell the students who stripped Evanston's policemen of their badges, clubs and revolvers. They forced some of the officers to head a snake dance.

President Walter Dill Scott of the university said today that the disturbance had no underlying cause other than "youthful mischief."

Evanston police declared the trouble started because firemen attempted to interfere with a bonfire football celebration.

The LOST WORLD

"I leaned forward toward this strange beautiful creature when a high whistling cry—the call of some great animal with a weird human note—rang out in the darkness. We had just time to scramble into the cave when there came to a great crashing of branches directly above where we had been standing."—Ed Malone's Diary.
